

Welcome Back to Venice

Rediscover What You Love, and Find Something New

There’s something special about this time of year in Venice. Familiar faces return, neighbors reconnect, and calendars begin to fill with outdoor plans, dinners with friends, and visits from family. Whether you’ve been away for the summer or have enjoyed Venice year-round, the approaching season is an invitation to get out and appreciate the place we call home.

From time beside the Gulf to discovering a new favorite spot, there’s plenty to look forward to.

Rediscover Your Venice Favorites

That might mean a morning walk along Venice Beach, coffee and a little shopping downtown, a bike ride on the Venetian Waterway Park trail, or an evening spent watching the sunset. For others, it’s simply opening the lanai doors and enjoying a leisurely breakfast outside.

With beautiful Gulf views and so much to enjoy outdoors, it’s easy to remember why so many people make Venice part of their lives. But the appeal goes beyond the scenery. It’s the neighbors who become friends, the local businesses that recognize you, and the familiar routines that make this feel like home.

Before your calendar gets too full, make time for a few of those favorites. There’s no need to save them for when company comes!
